SUMMARY

Engineering manager with twelve years across payments, identity and internal platform teams. I moved into management in 2018 and still review code weekly. Most of my work is about making delivery predictable without turning teams into ticket factories.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Engineering Manager, Platform
Loomis Financial, London
Jan 2022 - Present

- " Lead three teams covering identity, payments orchestration and developer tooling
- " Introduced a service catalogue that replaced tribal knowledge about ownership
- " Ran the migration of eleven services off a shared database, one team at a time
- " Hired nine engineers and two tech leads, with a structured interview loom
- " Cut the time to provision a new service from two weeks to under a day

Staff Engineer
Loomis Financial, London
Mar 2020 - Dec 2021

- " Designed the tokenisation service that now fronts every card transaction
- " Wrote the migration plan that let the payments team stop writing to the legacy ledger
- " Mentored four engineers, two of whom now lead their own teams

Senior Backend Engineer
Halden Pay, Manchester
Feb 2018 - Feb 2020

- " Owned the settlement pipeline, including the nightly reconciliation job
- " Replaced hand-rolled retries with an idempotency layer, ending duplicate captures
- " Added structured logging and tracing across eight services

Backend Engineer
Halden Pay, Manchester
Aug 2016 - Jan 2018

- " Built the merchant onboarding API and its webhook delivery system
- " Moved the deployment pipeline from Jenkins to GitHub Actions

Backend Engineer
Cartwright Systems, Leeds
Sep 2014 - Jul 2016

- " Maintained a Django monolith serving twelve regional insurers
- " Wrote the reporting exports finance had previously assembled by hand

Junior Developer
Cartwright Systems, Leeds
Jul 2013 - Aug 2014

" Fixed defects across the claims module and learned to read a stack trace properly
" Wrote the first integration tests the team had
